The American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) is the leading professional association for the civil engineering industry and home to 32,000 student members across the globe.

Students participate in ASCE in many ways, through ASCE Student Chapters, Student Symposia, and Society-wide events and competitions. The tradition of competition has been fundamental to the ASCE experience for 40 years! Competitions develop students' technical and professional skills beyond the classroom and develop them into leaders ready to enter the workforce.

The ASCE Civil Engineering Student Championships is ASCE's student flagship event. Each year thousands of students, on hundreds of teams, vie for the right to compete in the Society-level competition finals held at the Championships. Only the elite survive!

“

“I’ve had the privilege of attending the Championships for the past three years, and it’s incredible to see the talent and hard work of civil engineering students across all of ASCE. Competing has given me the opportunity to perform professional-level work, lead my own team, and has inspired me to pursue a dual-licensed career. This program has been the highlight of my undergraduate career.”
